MANUEL FELGUEREZ is recognized as one of the most important Mexican artists living today. He is known worldwide and has won both national and international prizes. Felguerez has exhibited in many different countries and received honors from numerous prestigious institutions.

During the mid 1950's, a group of young Mexican artists initiated a new movement that changed the history of visual art in Mexico. Felguerez was one of the pioneers of this movement. Though his work broke away from tradition, as did others in the movement, he maintained his connection to his roots. As a tireless explorer, he successfully combined the theory of art with the tradition of the Mexican artesanía.

Fluctuating between pure formality and the unexpected elements of spontaneity, the work of Manuel Felguerez vibrates with energy. His work is audacious without being strident, perfectionist but not boring, poetic without being sentimental
